CHRIS SAYS...*Buddies –

Grrrrrrrr! Just got off the phone with a buddy who's about at his wits end. Ready to "end it all". Absolutely hopeless. Same story, second verse. Hear it half a dozen times a day. He's been sober a few months, a couple of meetings, no sponsor, no steps. "Life's good! No sweat. I know where those meetings are if I get to feeling bad". (That stuff comes out of your mouths and the hair stands straight up on the back of my neck!) I've said it a 100 times myself back in the bad 'ol days. Life does what it does and his life got a little bumpy...he got loaded. Quickly. Nobody there to lean on. No Conscious Contact with that HP. Just a dark room and mind full of fear. It's inevitable. When the obsession to use returns, you will use. All of us will. That's why the BB says on page 43, "Once more: The alcoholic at certain times has no effective mental defense against the first drink. Except in a few rare cases, neither he nor any other human being can provide such a defense. His defense MUST come from a higher power."

Always amazes me that we will spend all that time and money to come to treatment, only to leave and do things "our way" one more time. The frustrating part for all of us is "our way" can work for a while! Right up till that 'ol obsession kicks in again! Then we are sunk. The way out of this mess is the same for all of us. F-I-N-N-I-S-H The STEPS!!! Not two months from now, not next week, NOW!

So many of us seem to be finding a nice hiding place at step 2. "I'm having trouble with step 2". For most of us that's just plain rubbish. How long can we wrestle with one question? Do you believe there's something out there bigger than you? "Well...yes." THEN LET'S GET ON WITH THE WORK!! Nowhere in the book does it say ya gotta get GOD all figured out before you can proceed. Nowhere. Isn't the truth that you're just a bit LAZY and you're trying to put off the inevitable? I think so.

Stop trying to do this yourself. That's probably the one biggest theme in all these stupid articles I write. Life starts to throw ya some curves, pick up the phone and call some recovery folks. That includes me. If you leave me a message, I'll call ya back. Promise. If you don't get a call back, it's because you either left me a wrong # or you left it so fast I couldn't understand it! (You little tweekers need to speak slowly!)

Finally getting warmer out there....Reunion 33 is right around the corner. May 6, 7, and 8. Make those hotel reservations NOW. This year lets all bring coats. Man, it was cold last year! Everybody is welcome. (YES, even if you relapsed! I get that question every year!) Hope to see lots of you here!

By the time y'all read this, the newly remodeled store will be back in action. Let us know if you need anything.

xoxo – Chris R.

ALICIA SAYS...*Hello...

Here we are again...Reunion is right around the corner and we are so excited...we are praying for good weather and lots of people. This is always an amazing experience for us because we are given the opportunity to see that the seeds that were planted here at La Hacienda have grown. This year should be the best ever...I guess we say that every year, but it's true!

I recently celebrated my 6 year sobriety birthday and was blessed by reflecting on what God has done in my life this last year. I am in awe...how did He do all of this? There has been several unbelievable gifts, many painful trials, countless grace covered events, and so much more. I can honestly say that I am changed and I am not the same woman that picked up a 5 year chip. I love the promise on pg.50 that says "In the face of collapse and despair...they found that a new power, peace, happiness, and sense of direction flowed into them." This promise came true in my life...when I "met a few simple requirements". I had "new power" to walk through many fears that could have been paralyzing. I experienced utter "peace" amidst the storms. I was given the gift of "happiness" and was able to express this through laughter with friends and silly play times with Ethan. I felt a "sense of direction" as I made some very difficult decisions. This promise has been a reoccurring theme in my sobriety.

In November of last year, I had the honor of speaking at an AA/Al-anon Convention in Copenhagen, Denmark. This was such a turning point for me...as I was getting ready to speak, tears were streaming down my cheeks as I sat in amazement of how God had changed and recreated my life from the inside out. It was as if God was saying "This is just the beginning of what I have for you if you will trust Me!". That talk in Denmark was a life changing event for me and I have been given the courage to move forward no matter how frightened I may be. I am surrounded by "power, peace, happiness, and a sense of direction." This promise can come true for any of us, so long as we meet a “few simple requirements.”

If you know someone who is struggling with these “requirements”, see what you can do for them by allowing the light in your spirit to guide them to the Truth. People in this fellowship did it for me, so now I am responsible to pass it on... it has saved my life many times. Thank you, in advance; to all of you that we will see at Reunion...we need each one of you. Thank you for allowing the seed that was planted to blossom into miracles. If you need anything or just want to chat, please call me...that is what we are here for.

Until then – Alicia

DJ SAYS...

Hey Alumni,

Here we are coming up on reunion again (already). This year seems to have just flown by. I am really looking forward to seeing y'all and hearing about what has been going on in your lives. Like usual, I have put this off until the last minute. One would think that I would have gotten better at that by now but I haven't! Here it is Super Bowl Sunday and I am sitting here writing this article. That is all right though, the truth is I am not really that much for football but I sure have enjoyed the fellowship at this little gathering. Just watching as everyone enjoys themselves and really care about one another has been a real blessing today.

I have gone thru some changes in my life recently and the support that I have gotten from my brothers and sisters in the fellow-ship has been nothing short of amazing. I tend to stay pretty focused on the fact that it is “The Program” that has put me on the spiritual path of recovery. However, recently God has been showing me just how vital the love and support of my fellows really is. Sometimes one of the hardest things for me to do is let someone else help me. I know that is all about my ego but knowing that doesn't always make it any easier. My mind wants to tell me that since I have been sober for awhile I should not have “problems”. Thank God that that is not true. What I am learning is that it is not really the situation that is all that important. It is how I deal with it that counts. I am so grateful for the people who bring me back to earth and then help me to stand for the things that I truly believe in.

I had a woman who is a dear friend of mine out in Brady, Texas ask me if I would do a Big Book study at her home group and my response was asking her if I could put it off until I could get my act together. Only I didn't say “act”. She promptly chewed my butt. She asked me what made me think that I needed to have my “act” together to participate in my own recovery because if that was the way this thing worked I would have never needed it in the first place! She then pointed out that I was trying to get all my ducks in a row and that the reality is “DJ you only have one duck and it isn't yours it belongs to God.”

I have to tell you that it had been awhile since someone had really taken me to task like that and the truth is, it felt great! Those are the people who have helped me stay on the path. They are the ones who tell me the truth and are more concerned with helping me than worrying that they might hurt my feelings. Who am I to turn down an opportunity to serve Alcoholics Anonymous? Everything I have I owe to A.A. Even my relationship with God because without A.A. my experience shows me I don't have a relationship with God.

The point is, it has been God working thru the people in the fellowship, who are doing this deal, which has really helped me to keep my feet on the ground during some challenging times. Life is very good today and the possibilities for the future are exciting.

If any of y'all out there are struggling please reach out to someone. If I can help in any way give me a call at ext. 511. Hope to see you at reunion. Till then God bless and much love.

Your friend – DJ

FROM THE OUTREACH OFFICES...

AUSTIN

Brothers and sisters,

This is Jaime from Solutions in Austin hoping that your New Year is going as good as mine is. Please don't misconstrue this as me telling you that my life is problem free, because it most certainly isn't, but rather hear me telling you plainly that I am loving life. My Creator has blessed me many times over already this year. At the close of 2004, I found myself in a beautiful office in Lakeway to strategize with a financial consultant on a new business venture that my business partner and I had been envisioning. At least that is what I thought I was there for. By the time the dust had settled, I had refinanced my house, bought my wife a new vehicle (leather interior, 6 CD changer, bells & whistles,...), paid off 6 credit cards, finished some major financial amends, socked some away, and still had some expendable cash! How the hell did that happen? This is coming from the guy who could never hold on to that “folding” money. Let’s get real here though, am I still in debt? Oh yeah!! You can’t do cocaine and drink like I did and not have incurred some significant fiscal damage, but the point is that by living this program on a daily basis I am seeing some light at the end of the tunnel. I share this with you all not to make myself look like a big shot, because I know I am not. I share this with you to give those of you who have screwed up your financial life like I did some hope. You can work your way out of any situation with endurance, perseverance, and God’s loving grace. I could not see an end to the black hole I had created for my family’s accounts when I first got sober. I was in deep and didn’t have anyone with deep pockets to bail me out. What I did have was the 12 steps and a huge desire to remain sober for the rest of my life. So I got busy. We are all so fortunate to have a way to “rise above” our seemingly insurmountable difficulties and get taken to a more wonderful place than we could ever have imagined. This has been my experience.

Love, Jaime
jloera@lahasolutions.com

A man went to a barbershop to have his hair cut and his beard trimmed. As the barber began to work, they began a conversation. They talked about many things and various subjects. When they eventually touched on the subject of God, the barber said:

“I don’t believe that God exists.”

“Why do you say that?” asked the customer.

“Well, you just have to go out in the street to realize that God doesn’t exist. Tell me, if God exists, would there be so many sick people? Would there be abandoned children? If God existed, there would be neither suffering nor pain. I can’t imagine a loving God who would allow all of these things.”

The customer thought for a moment, but didn’t respond because he didn’t want to start an argument. The barber finished his job and the customer left the shop. Just after he left the barbershop, he saw a man in the street with long, stringy, dirty hair and an untrimmed beard. He looked dirty and unkempt. The customer turned back and entered the barbershop again and he said to the barber:

“You know what? Barbers do not exist.”

“How can you say that?” asked the surprised barber. “I am here, and I am a barber. And I just worked on you!”

“No!” the customer ex-claimed. “Barbers don’t exist because if they did, there would be no people with dirty long hair and untrimmed beards, like that man outside.”

“Ah, but barbers DO exist! What happens is, people do not come to me.”

“Exactly!” said the customer.

The Salvation of a Man is Through Love and In Love

--Viktor Frankl

The panhandler on the busy street corner feels forsaken. The elderly woman whose phone doesn’t ring stares through a gap in her drawn drapes and wonders if she’s been forgotten. And awaiting the prayed-for visit from a potential foster parent, the child is fearfully certain he won’t be acceptable.

The tragedy is that so few of us have experienced whole and unconditional love from the significant people in our lives. So few of us are certain of our value in the lives of others. For parents and teachers we performed to earn their favor. From friends we expected acceptance, yet sometimes we bought it. And because we haven’t known the pleasure of unconditional love but have been perpetually in search of it, we’ve not felt adequate to offer it to others. It’s difficult to give away what we fear we don’t have; yet, paradoxically, that’s the key to our salvation.

As we give others our love, we’ll likewise experience a greater measure of it. And it need not come from outside. It will, instead, well up from within. We each have the power of personal salvation. All we must do is love.

Here are some pictures of the newly remodeled La Hacienda Store!!!

Chris has a bigger closet for an office.
